

Larry Laswell

What's New with Larry Laswell?

Susan Young for Marshall Publishing

I caught up with Larry this week, after a busy month of activity, and he filled me in on what's coming up in the months ahead with some of his book promotions and tours, as well as what he's working on writing next. Here's what fans can expect this spring and summer:

- Re-release of The Marathon Watch: As you may have read in this recent press release, Larry will be launching his second edition of his first military fiction novel The Marathon Watch this May. The re-release will contain some previously deleted content, as well as enhanced storylines and more colorful text. Readers can still find copies of the original Marathon edition for a limited time on Amazon.com or in e-Bookstores everywhere.
- Enhanced author website: Larry is working on improvements to his website to accommodate the new published work he has created. Future updates to his fan website will include special pages for each of his new books, including The Marathon Watch, A Ship Load of Sea Stories & 1 Fairy Tale, and his latest work, Vows to the Fallen. Readers can continue to submit reviews via the website for any of the books, as well as comment on Larry's blog entries.
- First Chapter Release of Vows to the Fallen: Larry's new military fiction novel in the Marathon Watch series, Vows to the Fallen, will release on the 70th anniversary of VJ-Day (August 14, 2015). As part of the pre-release buzz, Larry will release the first chapter of his book on his website this summer, for fans to preview before buying. For more details, read the latest news release on the new book.
- Blog Tour: As part of his pre-book launch promotion, Larry will be visiting several book blog websites in July to talk about his latest work, Vows to the Fallen. Stay tuned for updates on which blogs will be part of the tour and how you can get details on some of the interviews.
- Next Series: Science Fiction: Believe it or not, Larry is shifting genres entirely on his next book series and is venturing into the world of science fiction. His new novel will feature a complex, futuristic society with an interesting twist. I don't want to give away any other details, but you'll have to stay tuned for more clues in the coming blog posts.

That's it for now, folks. Keep in touch to let Larry know how you're enjoying his books by leaving a comment here or submitting a review on this website.